ARUNDEL'S NATURE IN ART: ART IN NATURE POETRY TRAIL

Welcome to Greening Arundel's Nature in Art: Art in Nature Poetry Trail, which has been produced in collaboration with local poetry groups, Swanbourne Poets and Chichester Stanza. The Trail not only showcases the creative talent of local poets but also highlights nature recovery initiatives undertaken by Green Team volunteers on behalf of Greening Arundel.

We invite you to wander along one of the Trail routes enjoying the poems and the beauty of nature as you go. We hope that you may be stimulated, surprised and moved in equal measure by this initiative.

Multicoloured NaviLens codes can be scanned for each poem to hear the poets reading their work. This feature was added to enable people with sight loss to enjoy the Trail, but we hope this will enhance the experience for all followers of this Trail.

The Trail starts and finishes at Arundel Train Station to encourage sustainable transport. It extends to Swanbourne Lake in the East and to Ford Road Cemetery and the Community Orchard in the West.

The Trail is all on the flat. The dark green route covers the full Trail, which is 9,300 steps, equating to 7.3 km or 4.5 miles. It should take approximately 80 minutes. For those wishing to hit the 10,000-step mark, a walk around Swanbourne Lake could be added. However, if walkers of the Trail would prefer a shorter route, they can follow the pink town centre route making the walk 3.2 km or 2 miles. This takes approximately 35 minutes.

Others may wish to follow a mid-length walk by including either the orange northeastern or pale green western portion alongside the pink town centre route destinations. This would be 5.5 km or 3.4 miles long and should take approximately 60 minutes.

We hope that you find much to ponder and enjoy in this Nature in Art: Art in Nature Poetry Trail. We are grateful to Lydia Bevan at hand-drawnmaps.co.uk for designing the Poetry Trail map and to the Community Rail Partnership for funding its design and installation.
